Plan for the Future
Now is the time to find your purpose and really hone your skills. Set up an appointment with your Advisor to talk about your future plans and options. Consider finding a faculty mentor who can help guide you.

Look for opportunities to acquire the knowledge, skills, and abilities necessary for the jobs or further education you want. Make this a priority.

Be a Leader and Expand Your Horizons
Start networking and building relationships that can help you in the future. Consider studying abroad to expand your horizons and set you apart by visiting the Center for Global Education.

Seek out leadership opportunities in the organizations you’ve joined. If you’re not already involved in an organization, find an organization that fits your values and interests and get involved! See http://utulsa.edu/campus-life/student-activities for all the places where you can serve and lead.

Invest in Professionalism
Participate in the variety of career fairs TU hosts each year, where employer representatives come to campus to provide information and answer questions about their industries, organizations, and employment/internship opportunities. Do mock interviews and explore the Occupational Outlook Handbook online. Before attending a job fair, check in with Career Services to have them review your resume and help you prepare.

Present a paper or poster at a conference. Explore internship opportunities and plan to intern and build your resume. Keep building your professional image and wardrobe.

Get Ready
During the second semester, meet with your advisor to ensure you’re on track to graduate and that you have a plan for how to meet all of your major requirements. Stay motivated—find what you love and keep your goals in mind to help you persevere.
